SLAVES HIDDEN HERE – In connection with the Civil War Centennial, these Cub Scouts toured the Pettigrew-Mortimor home in Jenkins rd., where slaves were hidden prior to the War. A small opening in the attic, beside the chimney, leads down to a larger room beneath the floor, where the slaves were hidden by William and Mary Jenkins. They travelled by night to the next station of the underground railway. Cub Scouts are, rear row, Lee Patterson, David Duncan, Greg Bell and Charles May; front, Douglas Grange and Hank Anthony. Valerie Bell also made the trip. (Staff Photo)

Clear Way For Action On Liquor License

By a 3-2 vote, the Selectmen have decided to consider applications for the one all-alcoholic package store license available at this time.

A motion by Selectman Philip K. Allen not to grant the license at this time was defeated, gaining the support only of Selectman Russell G. Doyle.

Selectman William Stewart, James D. Wilson and Chairman Eugene A. Bernardin Jr. voted against the motion, thus opening the way to hearing applicants and granting the license.

Letters are being sent to the 20 persons who have notified the Board of an intent to apply, suggesting that they do so during the next week. Town Clerk Irving Piper, who is preparing the letter, said he anticipates that notices of the applications will be published May 4. The Selectmen may not consider the applications prior to 10 days after publication, and must decide the matter within 30 days.

Board members agreed that those who have written to the Selectmen should be notified, although they, of course, are not the only ones who may apply.

No restriction can be placed on

Board "Considering" Action In Truck Case

The Selectmen are "considering" possible courses of action in the now-famous truck parking case.

Their decision may be made tomorrow morning in a special session of the Board.

The Board announced its "consideration" of possible appeals from the Superior Court ruling at a crowded meeting Monday night. The conference room at town hall was filled with interested residents most of whom may be subject to restrictions against parking their trucks in residential areas.

Even as the Board continued to think about taking action, Atty. Burton Shaker told the gathering that his client, Joseph W. Hoffman, has not decided on appealing the case.

Later in the week, the Andover Board of Trade voted to request the Selectmen to take whatever steps they can to reverse the

Schools Join In Musical

For the second consecutive year, students from Andover's three secondary schools, Andover High School, Abbot Academy, and Phillips Academy, will combine their talents under the auspices of the Phillips Academy Music Department to produce a musical comedy.

This year's musical is "Guys and Dolls", which had a succesful run on Broadway several years back. The music and lyrics are by Frank Loesser with book by Jo Swerling and Abe Burrows, based on a story by Damon Runyon.

The female leads are taken by Mrs. Marjory Byers Billings,

Urban Renewal Under Discussion

Ideas on what Urban Renewal can do for the center of town were presented to the Selectmen Monday night by members of the Housing Authority.

Explaining the area, and tentative plans for it, were director James Franklin and Ralph Barnes, representing Candeub and Fleissig, the consulting firm.

Noting that the project area has been defined and identified as to types of building uses, ideas for the eventual use of the land were offered for discussion.

Mr. Barnes commented that the business area would not be significantly enlarged, as it is now mostly surrounded by residential property, or land that does not lend itself to development for retail business. He also emphasized that any final plan will harmonize with

Trade Board Seeks Data On Parking

The Board of Trade, meeting Tuesday night at the Andover Inn, voted to seek specific information from town and state officials on Rogers Brook progress.

The Board's parking lot has been stalled, awaiting information on the Brook reconstruction through the area west of Main st., where the merchants propose to install a parking area.

Joseph Doherty, who was directed to write letters to the town officials and the local representatives, pointed out to the meeting that the time has come when the Board must obtain specific information.

Town Manager Thomas E. Duff, after a meeting in Boston about two weeks ago, reported that final engineering on land takings is to be done by the state's consulting firm. However, there has been no definite information on when the project might be expected to get underway.

Beginning with the Renaissance, the Baroque, and the Rococo, through 19th Century realist, romantic, and impressionist movements, the early 20th Century cubists and nabis, to the contemporary moderns, the exhibition affords a pleasing and interesting manner of showing the inter-relation of art and music by means of the representation of bowed and plucked stringed instruments.

Obscured in remote antiquity, the origin of the lute, lyre and harp are unknown. Discoveries in Ur revealed the lyre and harp highly developed, richly ornamented in silver and gold and precious stones, and painted in colors. The tradition of musical instruments as objects of beauty continued, and they were collected by princes and kings. At Augsburg, in 1566, the museum held 400 costly instruments; Henry VIII had 381; the Berlin Court had 72, and the Dukes of Tyrol at Innsbruck boasted 196. Lutes, viols, guitars, violins and harps made up an average of one-third of the collections, with the balance in wind and percussion instruments.

The lute, a plucked instrument, was used in one variation or another in ancient Persia (where it is believed to have originated), Egypt, China, and Europe, retaining its characteristic pear form. It was widely used until the 18th Century when the violin, viols and larger bowed instruments, and the guitar, came into greater popularity with the development of ensemble music.

Artists of every period were attracted by the interesting shapes of these instruments, their evocative connotations and symbolism. Stringed instruments appear in the work of printmakers of the early Renaissance. Shown are Antonio da Trento's "Lute Player", Raimondi's "Parnassus" with the lyre. More recently the harp, lute, and lyre are presented in their classic forms in compositions by Daumier, Fantin-Latour, Redon, and Tacke.

The fiddle appears in baroque works of Giacomo Franco in his engravings of the legend of Orpheus, and later in "The Times" by Hogarth who utilizes it in a political satire recalling Nero and the burning of Rome. Daumier's "Les chanteurs" is more of a social statement, while recent works utilize the highly developed violin, cello, and viols for the appeal of their shapes. The elegance of these instruments is seen in Duclos' "Le concert" which shows also the harp; in more modern manifestations in "Orchestra" by Dufy, Severini's and Hilair's "Musicians", Heller's "EADG", and Dayez' "Quartette". The treatment ranges from the traditional to cubist and neo-cubist styles.

While earlier, classical works employ musical instruments in their functional role, or as symbols properly used as compositional elements, modern works yield representation of creative impulses that are directed to develop familiar shapes into significant forms as expressive components of dynamic ensembles. In cubist prints the forms are broken - in neo-cubist works they are re-composed so that the instruments regain their recognizable shapes, with their expressiveness emphasized.

The same development took place in the presentation of the guitar, so popular in Spain and generally in 19th and 20th Century art. Goya, Jacque, and Manet pictured it in conventional form as do contemporaries such as Heintzelman, Fabri and Saetti. The mandolin, as well as the guitar is a favorite with the cubists and neo-cubists since both lend themselves admirably to dynamic pattern, so successfully realized in Braque's "Still Life" executed by Villon in color aquatint, in Gleize's pandora, and in color lithographs by Severini, Aizpiri, and Bezombes.

The continuity in the evolution of these instruments and their representation in artistic language is a rewarding experience to follow both for their role in the field of music and their adaptation to realistic and suggestive shapes for creative expression by prominent artists, as shown in these prints of many media, with one-third of their number in color.

The exhibition covers prints from the Renaissance period up to the present time. The various schools represented are: impressionist, post-impressionist, and cubists; some are in black and white and some are in color. Among the countries represented are Italy, France, England, America, and one Turkish. The Gallery is open to the public Monday through Friday, from 9:30 - 4:30.

ago, to determine how the child is progressing.

The test is based on the fifth month of the seventh year - thus the figure 7.5 is the national norm. The first digit indicates the year, the second and third digits show the month, carried to one decimal.

In reading, seventh graders here average 83.6 - in the eighth year, 3.6th month.

Vocabulary ability is 87.1; spelling, 80.3; capitalization, 91.2; punctuation, 86.9; usage, 87.2. Thus the total for language skills here is 86.4 - one year and 6.4 months ahead of the national norm.

Under work-study skills, the total for the seventh grade here is 80.9. This total was obtained from the following test areas - maps, 78.3; graphs, 80.6; references, 83.8.

In arithmetic skills, the local total is 81, compared to the 7.5 national norm. It is obtained from these tests - concepts, 82.5; and problems, 79.4.

DAR Heard Talk On Birds

The April meeting of Priscilla Abbot Chapter, N.S.D.A.R., was held at the home of Mrs. William Trow on Chandler cir.

A gathering of nearly 30, seven of whom were guests, enjoyed the very interesting program on Birds given by Mrs. Waters Kellogg, and illustrated by colored slides of the various birds which are native to this part of the country and especially to Essex County.

The meeting opened at 2 o'clock with dessert served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. William Waldron, Mrs. Harold Dunn, Mrs. Frank Hayes and Mrs. Joseph Smethurst. Mrs. Dunn and Mrs. Arthur Bonner served at the coffee table.

The regent, Mrs. Edwin Otto, opened the business, and devotional and patriotic exercises followed. The President General's message was read by the vice regent, Mrs. Edward Thompson; the secretary's report by Mrs Harry Donovan and the treasurer's by Mrs. Trow. The National Defense report by Mrs. Hayes told how the communists try to infiltrate the schools, causing student riots in many places; also try to influence people through other propaganda.

Mrs. Smethurst read letters, one of which was from Hillside School to which the Chapter has sent donations, thanking the members. Mrs. Edwin Lewis, American Flag chairman, told of the flags which the Chapter has recently given to troops of Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, the latter being presented by Mrs. Thompson. Mrs. Thompson also told of the historic tours which will be given for the pupils in the fifth grades of the several public schools in Andover as has been done for the past five years. These will take place May 3 and 10, and several of the members volunteered as chaperons.

The last meeting of the Chapter for this season will be held May 9 at the home of the regent, Mrs. Otto on Vine st, and will be at 1:30 o'clock, as a chicken barbecue will be served. All members are asked to telephone Mrs. Otto if they can or can not attend, as those putting on the barbecue must know in advance the number to be served.

Following the business, Mrs. Kellogg gave her very interesting and informative talk. The colored slides brought out the beautiful plumage of the birds, and their surroundings, which made the talk doubly pleasing. Preservation of wildlife is one of the projects of the D.A.R., and the securing of various swamps and open spaces, where birds can breed and live, is part of several Andover societies' purposes.

Mrs. Waters said that there are more birds than any other form of vertebrate life in the world, over 8,600 species being known. There are over 300 different birds which have been noticed in Essex County alone. Birds in ancient days were thought of as spirits and sometimes demons, and primitive people were afraid of them and often placated them in some form if they thought trouble would be sent upon them. There are over 30 species mentioned in the Bible, and Mrs. Waters said that Christopher Columbus was really the first bird watcher in this country, although up until a few years ago, bird watchers were considered a little crazy.

She mentioned the various birds which are permanent residents around these parts, and various others which migrate south and come back in the spring. There are the chickadees, woodpeckers, finches, grosbeaks, sparrows, robins, blue birds, swallows, thrushes, wrens and owls. These last and hawks have been much maligned, she said, but were great hunters of mice and other animals which destroy grain and fruit. Many of the birds have adapted themselves to unfamiliar forms of living as their native swamps and meadows have been taken over by cities and towns for building, showing what some of the smallest of animal life can do if forced to change to survive.

A social time was later enjoyed and the guests welcomed. They included members from Betsy Ross chapter of Lawrence, Samuel Adams chapter of Methuen, and Olds Redding Chapter of Reading. Also welcomed back was Mrs. Roland Glines, who is now living in South Newbury, N.H.

Mother - Daughter Communion Breakfast

The Mothers' Guild of St. Augustine's Parish in Andover will hold its annual Mother and Daughter Communion Breakfast next Sunday.

The group will receive communion at the 9 o'clock Mass in the lower Church, and the breakfast will follow immediately after at the Yankee Doodle restaurant.

The guest speaker will be James A. McGravey, director of public relations and professor of English at Merrimack College.

CONSIDERING ACTION ON PARKING

ruling, in the belief that it adversely affects many small businessmen who drive home at night in small commercial vehicles. Meeting Tuesday evening, the Board told its president, Kenneth P. Thompson, to write the Selectmen and make known the opinion of the merchants.

Whether or not an appeal will result in a definitive ruling from the state Supreme Court is also being questioned.

Atty. Arthur L. Harper Jr., speaking at the Selectmen's meeting, suggested that the state's highest court may rule specifically and only on the Hoffman case - leaving the parking of other vehicles in the realm of the undecided.

Mr. Harper, who represented Mr. and Mrs. Earl O. Setterblade, 56 Marilyn dr., briefly recounted his experiences in attempting to get municipal action prior to taking the case to court.

He said conferences with town counsel Fredric S. O'Brien and Town Manager Thomas E. Duff, and the furnishing of briefs and Supreme Court decisions in other cases, failed to obtain relief for his clients.

Thus a mandamus petition was sought, against Building Inspector Ernest N. Hall, to require him to enforce the zoning by-law by restricting Mr. Hoffman from parking his panel truck at his home on Marilyn dr.

The court ruling directed Mr. Hall to enforce the town's zoning by-law, and to require Mr. Hoffman to "cease and desist" from practices that are in violation. But the argument has been publicly presented that the ruling does not directly state that parking the truck is a violation. Other evidence was presented in the trial of the case, concerning other business activities at the location, and some persons have believed the ruling may have taken these into consideration.

In his presentation Monday night, Mr. Harper wanted the Selectmen to know that he had made every effort to have the problem decided by town officials before resorting to court action, and he specifically wanted it understood that he had tried to present the facts to the Selectmen on at least one occasion. He had been told, he stated, that the matter was under the control of the manager, and that it did not properly belong before the town's policy-making board.

Atty. Shaker told the Selectmen that the case, although mentioning only one person, actually involves many residents who take their trucks home at night. He urged appeal by the town, commenting that the court will probably review the affect on the entire town, and other businessmen in it.

"If the building inspector issues an order to remove the truck", Atty. Shaker stated, "no doubt the building inspector will have to do the same for any others similarly parking trucks".

In answer to one question, Atty. Fredric S. O'Brien told the group that professional offices or a small studio are allowed in a residential area. Other uses are so-called accessory uses to the nature of the district. For example, Mr. O'Brien pointed out that nothing in the by-laws allows automobiles in residential zones, but these are "accessory" to the use of the property. Whether parking small trucks, station wagons lettered with business names, or even unmarked vehicles used for business, can be considered "accessory" to the major use of the property in its residential category is the main question.

It was also explained at the meeting that zoning by-laws, where ambiguity exists, are interpreted usually according to the intent of the voters, as nearly as that can be determined in the minds of officials charged with enforcement of the law. In this connection, Mr. O'Brien said he doubted whether a by-law could be drafted, spelling out the exact regulations on parking - whatever the intent of the voters at a town meeting - without running the risk of stripping the by-law of its meaning.

The possibility that the Board of Appeals may come into the picture was also raised briefly. Although nothing specific along this line of thought was discussed, the idea that variances be granted, allowing the parking where the board feels this can be done, was raised.

Girl Scouts

Troop 95

The Brownies of Troop 95 reviewed the Girl Scout Promise and laws. They practiced table setting and bed making in preparation for their fly-up. Some time was devoted to discussion and planning a hike at Camp Maude Eaton on their next meeting day. They played the game of Cat and Rat, and closed the meeting with the friendship circle.

Troop 32

The Girl Scouts of Troop 32 are preparing for a camping trip. They have learned how to make trench candles and tin can stoves as well as waterproofing matches. The girls are all looking forward to this expedition.

Troop 90

The Brownies of Troop 90 are working on their requirements for their fly-up ceremony. They studied the use of the jack-knife this week, and all passed this requirement. The final patrol passed their Flag etiquette, and time was spent on scrap books of the Girl Scout Laws. Plans were made for a cook-out in the near future.

Troop 46

The Brownies of Troop 46 worked on sit-upons for an exploration trip to Camp Maude Eaton. These girls are also making a scrap book of their Troop activities. Some time this last meeting was devoted to making the cover for this scrap book. They have painted a plywood cover brown, and outlined the trefoil in gold. They are now putting on the Brownie Promise with spaghetti letters.

Troop 112

The Girl Scouts of Troop 112 spent most of their meeting time discussing plans for an overnight camping trip to Camp Maude Eaton. They also discussed the possibility of working for the Explorers Badge.

Troop 74

The Brownies of Troop 74 have a different leader. Mrs. Jeremiah Cronin has retired from the leadership, and Mrs. Francis McCabe has taken over. Mrs. Timothy Cronin will continue as assistant. These girls have had some very enjoyable meetings. One day, they went bowling, and they had a most pleasant trip through a local bakery. One day, they put on their own amateur show.

Troop 68

The Brownies of troop 68 started their meeting with the Flag ceremony. They discussed International Scouting, and each girl was assigned some research work to do on Brownies in another country. Next week, each girl is to bring in some contribution to the troop's First Aid Kit, and each girl is to make a small individual kit of her own. At the end of the meeting, they had a party of coke and cookies. Troop 68 is very happy to have its own Brownies Flag with its troop number on it.

Troop 118

Patrols 1, 2, and 3 of Girl Scout troop 118 finished their knot tieing requirement. The girls who had missed some meetings were permitted to make up their missed work. Patrols 4 and 5 decided on a play to present which will finish their work on their Dramatic Badge.

Troop 63

The Brownies of Troop 63 finished their bags at their meeting. Each girl was given a pair of scissors, a box of crayons, and a pencil case to be used for troop work. The leader, Mrs. Roberts, announced the winners of the camperships for Day Camp at Camp Maude Eaton. The girls were Betsy Gaw, Beverly Roberts, Ann Marie Bailey, and Patty Cannon. The girls earned the camperships by selling Girl Scout cookies.

IN CONCERT

Jacqueline Bamford, class of '63 and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Russell Bamford, 40 Woodland rd, took part in a choral festival at Clark University in Worcester, April 15. Clark University, University of Rhode Island, and Lesley College were the participating glee clubs.

Timely Theme For Shawsheen Operetta

A capacity audience witnessed the presentation of a delightful operetta Wednesday, April 12, at the Shawsheen School Auditorium.

The operetta, "Space Saucer X 2000", was an extremely timely one, since the age we are now living in is so often referred to as the space age.

Miss Anne Harnedy, principal, was in charge of the evenings program and she was ably assisted by Mrs. Miriam McArdle, director of music in the Andover schools; Mrs. Sally Donovan, Mrs. Frances St. Germain, Mrs. Pauline Durgin and Mrs. Margaret Fingleton.

Preceding the operetta, the Melody Flute Ensemble, which is composed of pupils in Grade Four, played two numbers, "Calcutta" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic". The members of the Ensemble have been trained by Miss Florence McCarthy and Mrs. Virginia Garland, teachers in grade four, under the direction of Mrs. Joyce Simon, supervisor of music in the Andover Schools.

The next P.T.A. event will be the Shawsheen School Fair, to be held Saturday, May 20.

LITTLEST LISTENERS

The Littlest Listeners met last Thursday morning in the Ballard Vale Branch library with Mrs. Emery Ackerman in charge.

A story hour and game period was enjoyed. Due to inclement weather, the group was smaller than usual. Children attending were James and Brian Moore, Corrine Powers, James and Maureen Frederick, Robert Driscoll, Laura Russell, Christine Brown, Steven Bourassa and Barbara Ann Powers.

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

Change The By-Law

The current argument about parking trucks in residential areas, starting as it did with one specific case, has now grown to astounding proportions.

At least 200 residents, it is now estimated, are directly concerned because they take their commercial vehicles home.

How many residents are bothered is difficult to determine; but it is apparent that considerable momentum is being established by the drive to arbitrarily ban all truck parking in the residential zones. It is, of course, equally possible that commercial vehicles other than trucks will become involved – station wagons publicly identified with the name of a business, for example, might be construed to be commercial.

The man who coined the phrase about having a bear by the tail must have been thinking of this problem. For indeed, like the man hanging onto the bear's tail, the town doesn't dare to let go, nor to hang on, either.

If the town appeals this case, and the Supreme Court ruling bans trucks, then severe hardships have been worked on a sizable number of citizens, and enforcement becomes a major headache. If the town does not appeal, and the Superior Court ruling is uncontested, the building inspector can be brought into court on contempt proceedings, if he does not require that trucks be banned.

How can the town let go?

One way is to write an amendment to the by-law, specifying the size and weight of trucks that can be properly garaged in a residential area.

This may not result in a perfect by-law, but perhaps it is a reasonable compromise.

One way or another, the small businessmen who operate the trucks have a right to know exactly where they stand. And town officials must also determine where they stand and how they will act in the future.

Men whose livelihoods depend on these smaller trucks should not be deprived of their living, nor should they be expected to add materially to their cost of operation. But the residents must also have some protection from the encroachment of larger and larger trucks. Spelling this out in a by-law should be seriously considered.

Open Minds Required

Urban renewal discussions, such as the one held Monday night with the Selectmen, are the only way to come to a full understanding of the subject, and its value to the town.

The Housing Authority intends to hold such talks, prior to finalizing plans, with all the appropriate boards. And citizens of the town will also have their chance to offer suggestions and comments.

It's worth repeating what we've said before – only a thorough comprehension of the plans can lead to their success at town meeting next year. Anything less than this will only result in the kind of arguments and fighting that has been noted in other communities.

It's also worth noting that residents should keep an open mind on the subject, so that all the details of this plan can be accepted and discussed before decisions are reached.

Action on the subject next March will depend entirely on how interested local residents become in the next few months. Urban renewal can't be described fully during an hour's debate at the meeting, and thus we all owe it to the Housing Authority to listen carefully, ask intelligent questions and take part in serious discussion without prejudging the question.

Down the Years with The Townsman

50 Years Ago – April, 1911

Dr. Hiland F. Holt, the local dentist, has moved into Carter's Block, where he will have new and more commodious quarters.

The annual meeting of the Tuesday Club was held Tuesday afternoon and Mrs. F. H. Foster was elected president.

Herbert Paul Carter has been chosen as valedictorian of his class at Punchard, and Lester Towne is the salutatorian.

Benjamin Wardwell will observe his 95th birthday next Monday.

The Selectmen have established limits for the town horses, so that the Board of Public Works will not be using them too far away from the fire station in case of fire.

Alexander MacKenzie is confined to his home on Red Spring rd. with a broken hip, suffered during the course of his employment. He fell down a flight of stairs at the mill Wednesday forenoon.

The new dormitory at The Seminary campus will be named Day Hall. The second new dormitory has been named Bishop Hall. Plans are being made to remodel the Library – to make provision for the offices of the principal, treasurer and registrar.

25 Years Ago – April, 1936

Miss Marguerite Hearsey has been chosen principal of Abbot Academy. The trustees announced her selection Wednesday.

The state Department of Public Works has refused to take any action in re-routing trucks over the By-Pass, from their present route along Main st. A petition bearing over 500 names had been presented, asking that trucks be required to take the alternate route for the safety of the town.

The Selectmen have written to Police Chief George Dane, telling him to keep the "no-fix" campaign in effect. Noting that the drive was effective last spring, the Selectmen want it continued. Bad weather has made it impossible for the motorcycle patrol to be maintained, but it will start up again now.

The Andover Village Improvement Society has agreed, with regret, that the Selectmen had no alternative to granting a license for a filling station at Chestnut and Main sts.

The annual May breakfast, sponsored by the Legion Auxiliary, will be held May 1, from 6-8 a.m., in town hall. Members of the group will solicit food for the event.

10 Years Ago – April, 1951

Miss Janet M. Fieldhouse has been named valedictorian and Miss Bessie Christie, salutatorian, at Punchard High.

Charles O. McCullom has been re-elected chairman of the trustees of the Andover Servicemen's Fund.

Residents of the veterans' housing project have met, and are planning to have a bill filed in the Legislature, changing the method of determining the rents. A scale of rents, based on gross income is now in effect. The proposal would have take-home pay substituted, and would deduct any payments for service disability or for part-time work.

Punchard won its opener, 6-3, at Tewksbury.

James Murray won first prize at the Barnard Speaking contest. Other winners were Miss Betty Wilson and Miss Barbara Kenney.

Summer Session At Phillips Academy

The Andover Summer Session, conducted by Phillips Academy, has announced plans for the coming summer. Robert P. Hulburd, director, announced that the Session will run from June 28 to Aug. 10.

Mr. Hulburd, in outlining the purpose of the Andover Summer Session, indicated that this was designed as an opportunity for serious study for able and qualified secondary school students. The curriculum is designed to provide enrichment and advancement rather than remedial or make-up work. Mr. Hulburd emphasized the fact that in no sense was this Summer Session a tutoring school or a cram session. It is expected that boys who will avail themselves of this opportunity will be taking new work, taking advantage of opportunities that are not normally provided in the average secondary school curriculum. The curriculum is broad and the educational standards are high. Outside the classroom there is a full boarding-school program of sports and extra-curricular activities. Last year, Mr. Hulburd explained, basic changes were made in the program as an experiment. Because of the overwhelming success of that program these changes are all incorporated in this year's Session. The Session is reduced from eight to six weeks; no credit will be given for any course; no review or make-up courses will be offered.

The most fundamental change requires that every student attending the Session take a six-hour english composition course in addition to a 12-hour major course in some other field.

The Summer Session faculty is made up almost entirely of men from the regular Andover faculty, and all of the facilities of Phillips Academy will be available to the summer students, including the 85,000 volume Library, the Addison Gallery of American Art and all the other cultural and athletic facilities of the 450 acre campus. In addition to the required English composition courses which will enable these able boys to improve their writing skills, courses will be offered in Art, The Classical and Modern Languages, English literature, History and Geography, Mathematics, Music, Physics, Biology and Chemistry. These courses are conducted at various levels to include pre-ninth grade and advanced courses for older boys. The ages run from 13 to 18.

Admission to the summer school is open to any secondary school student who presents to the Admissions Committee evidence of scholastic ability, seriousness of purpose and good character. Admissions is granted on a highly selective basis by a committee of the Andover faculty and the number of applications makes it highly competitive for the able student. In keeping with its character as a national school, geographic location is taken into consideration. Last year there were students from 34 states and three foreign countries. As the enrollment is limited, early applications are advisable, Mr. Hulburd said.

Mr. Hulburd emphasized that there would be financial grants made to students who qualified for admissions but who were in financial need. Last year over $10,000 was awarded in scholarship aid. Mr. Hulburd emphasized that in keeping with the Andover policy, the Summer Session is open to any deserving boy who meets the requirements without regard to race, religion or economic circumstance. Applications and information may be obtained upon request by writing to the Director of the Summer Session, Phillips Academy, Andover.

60 Years Of Best Sellers

An unusually interesting display of fiction books has been arranged at the Memorial Hall Library, from which any book may be borrowed by library readers. It is a sampling of the best sellers of fiction since the turn of the century, grouped for the years 1900-1925, 1926-1940 and from 1941 through 1960.

Presuming that you are a fiction reader today, and have been so for a number of years, would it surprise you to know that these were published in the first quarter of this century? – "Eben Holden", Bacheller; "Richard Carvel", Churchill; "To Have And To Hold", Johnson; "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch", Rice; "Little Shepherd Of Kingdom Come", Fox; "The Pit", Norris; "Revecca Of Sunnybrook Farm", Wiggin; "Trail Of The Lonesome Pine", Fox; "54-40 Or Fight", Hough; "Queed", Harrison; "Broad Highway", Farnol; "Penrod", Tarkington; "Dear Enemy", Webster; "The U.P. Trail", Grey; "Sea Hawk", Sabatini; "So Big", Ferber; "Babbitt", Lewis.

Remember any of them? (that is to say, did you read them when they were just off the press?) Never mind-but they were pretty good books after all, weren't they?

First Portrait Of Lincoln Found In Library In 1947

Readers of the Andover Townsman back in 1947 were delighted and proud to learn from a full page article that the long-sought "first portrait" of Abraham Lincoln had been found in their own Memorial Hall Library, a bequest to the library about 1915 by George Henry Torr.

Once again the portrait is back in a place of interest; this month it graces the cover of the nationally known "American Heritage" magazine.

Library users have been accustomed over the years to seeing this drawing of the quiet-eyed, clean-shaven Lincoln in its plain wooded frame, hanging on the walls of the main reading room. Its importance was unrecognized before the year 1947, when, through a happy coincidence, Miss Miriam Putnam, librarian, read an article in the Christian Science Monitor, which gave details of the story, and mentioned the probable destruction of the original. With a little research and the cooperation of experts, the pieces of the pattern fell into place, and the "lost" was found.

This past year it has been on tour as part of a traveling exhibition "The American Line", created by Bartlett H. Hayes Jr., director of the Addison Gallery of American Art at Phillips Academy. But it is now hanging in its own place, at the left of the door as one enters the adult reading room of the library.

According to Horace Reynolds, who wrote the article for the Monitor, Charles Alfred Barry was sent to Springfield, Illinois, in 1860 by a number of prominent Massachusetts Republicans to make a crayon sketch of the newly nominated Republican candidate for president. It was his intention to make a crayon drawing which could be reproduced on stone later by a lithographer.

At Lincoln's request, he was drawn "not chained to my chair", but from close observation while the great man continued with his work.

About two months earlier, Lincoln had permitted Volk, the sculptor, to make a life mask. At the time he is reported to have said that he had never sat for a sculptor or a painter before, only for photographers and makers of daguerreotypes.

If this is correct, then the portrait which hangs in the Library and looks out from the cover of the magazine is the first portrait drawn from life, a fine interpretation of a remarkable subject.

Will Get Plans On School Area

A Haverhill engineer, Ralph Brasseur, has been authorized to prepare a topographical map of the High School grounds, in order that adequate drainage and preliminary site work can be done.

Representatives of the School Commitee, Recreation Committee, Finance Committee, the superintendent of schools and town manager met last week. This phase of the work, the engineering study, was approved so that eventual construction of play fields and other areas can be accomplished.

Miss Malenas Has Leading Role In Play

Miss Giedre I. Malenas, who resides with her parents, Mr. and mrs. Stephen V. Malenas, 23 Kenilworth st, has been chosen to play the feminine lead in "Roman Candle," to be presented at Lowell Technological Institute May 5.

A 1958 graduate of St. Patrick's High School in Lawrence, Miss Malenas is a junior at Lowell Tech, majoring in chemistry. Besides belonging to the Lowell Tech Players, she is active in Phi Sigma Rho sorority, the chemistry club, the German club, and the staff of the Text, campus newspaper.

The male lead has been awarded to Leonard Frank, a senior from New York City, whose major is textile technology. He also holds the position of advertising manager in the Players organization. Mr. Frank is a member of Delta Kappa Phi fraternity, has been managing editor of the Text, and is listed in the 1961 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Both students have had considerable previous acting experience and had leading roles in the recently presented one-act comedy.

The theater group, the Tech Players, in the past has presented such hits as "The Man Who Came to Dinner" and "Mr. Roberts." "Roman Candle" was first performed in New York where it starred Julia Meade, Inger Stevens, and Robert Sterling. It is a modern comedy in three acts.

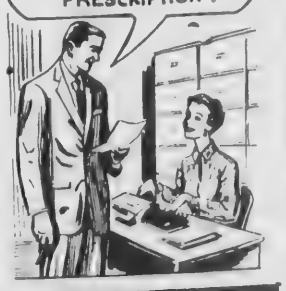

Friends of Mrs. James Stewart of Virginia rd. will be sorry to learn that she is a Surgical patient at the Deaconess Hospital in Boston.

Miss Carole Ann Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Meyer, 1/2 Oakland ave., Methuen, recently became the bride of Stephen C. O'Connor, son of Mrs. Stephen J. O'Connor and the late Mr. O'Connor, 3 Westwind rd., at the Emmanuel Primitive Methodist Church, Methuen. The Rev. Albert S. Tyson performed the double-ring ceremony.

Mrs. Kenneth Greenwood played the wedding marches and accompanied the soloist, Miss Margaret Campbell. Yellow and white mums decorated the altar and the pews were marked with white satin bows and palms.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a formal gown of peau-taffeta, with hand-cut Chantilly lace. The lace bodice came to a point in back, and the Sabrina neckline was appliqued in lace medallions, trimmed with seed pearls and sequins. Long, fitted sleeves came to Calla points over her hands. The bouffant skirt was fashioned with a front lace panel and the back of the skirt was trimmed with three peau-taffeta roses, which created a bustle effect. Her scalloped finger-tip veil fell from a crown of pearl orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses and Stephanotis.

Mrs. Ronald Brennan of Saugerties, N.Y., was matron of honor for her sister, and Miss Carol Farquar was maid of honor. They wore identical street-length dresses of aqua pure silk organza over taffeta, styled with scoop necklines and abbreviated sleeves. The 11 o'clock nuptial Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Thomas P. McGrady, O.M.I.

For her headpiece, she wore an heirloom veil of point d'applique Brussels lace. She carried an arrangement of white orchids, gardenias and Stephanotis.

The bride was escorted by her father, and was preceded to the altar by Margaret K. Donahue, her maid of honor.

URBAN RENEWAL AREA – This is the urban renewal area, reproduced from a map prepared by the consulting firm retained by the Housing Authority. It shows present use of land within the area, but does not indicate any contemplated future use. The only major notation necessary is that Florence st., although shown in the area, actually will not be affected by the project. Dwellings along the street are thought to be adequate, and will remain.

the "character" of the community and would not be a "citified new development".

He reminded the Selectmen that shopping centers attract customers because stores are new, attractively decorated and that plenty of parking is provided. It is also essential to have the ability to get around the periphery of the shopping area, he said.

He suggested that a new street might be constructed from Bartlet to Elm, near the telephone building. High st. possibly could be relocated, swinging up to Elm in the neighborhood of the telephone building.

Present planning calls for leaving the printing plant structure on Essex st., and one thought has been to cut a street through from this area, across Central, to Chestnut near the bank.

A substantial area on the east side of Main st. - present retail frontage - would be removed as would the buildings behind the stores. With this enlarged area, both stores and good parking facilities can be provided.

The town hall and fire station could probably be taken down, it was explained. The new town hall is being tentatively planned for the triangle where the apartment house stands, bounded by Main st. and High st., behind the police box in the square. A fire station might be provided on the Shaw property, or could be located within the project area if necessary.

It was noted by the consultant that renewal programs are done in stages, with efforts being make to make the project as easy for the merchants and residents as possible.

It was suggested that the vacant lot on the west side of Main st. might offer an opportunity for the first new building to go up, into which could be moved one or more of the firms required to vacate their present site. This step-by-step process would have as little effect on the business life of the community as possible, it was stated.

Mr. Barnes agreed that some few merchants may be hurt by the project, if they can't afford new rents in the renewal area. But he suggested that the Small Business Administration is specially equipped to help businessmen involved in renewal programs. Moving expenses up to a maximum of $3,000 are also allowed, he continued, but this is the only cash grant provided under urban renewal.

The project area is shown on the map appearing on page 18. Suggested uses are not shown on the plan of course, because they have not yet been finalized.

The Housing Authority is planning to have plans completed by summer, so that there will be ample time for inspection and discussion prior to the town meeting next March. Town boards are also being consulted in the planning stages, to get the benefit of members' ideas.

Convention Call Mailed This Week

Copies of the town meeting resolution, calling on the Legislature to call a Constitutional Convention in 1962, are this week being sent to the last of the 351 cities and towns in the state.

Accompanying the resolution is a statement of the things the a Convention should consider.

The resolution urges other cities and towns to similarly petition the Legislature, and cites, as a reason for taking this step, the need for "modernization of state and county government administrative and tax structures to accomplish more efficient operation and reduced costs"

The accompanying statement lists the following areas that should be considered by the Convention.

"A four year term for governor, yes!, but provision for the lieutenant governor to be of the same party and all top state officials, except auditor, to be appointive - a step toward administrative efficiency found in most states, and in the Federal Government.

"A re-organization of the commission on Administration and Finance to give definite responsibility and authority to conduct the Commonwealth business affairs with economy and efficiency.

"The grant of home rule to Massachusetts villages, towns and cities. Use of town equipment, organization of municipal departments are local responsibilities.

"The re-organization of the legislature. Massachusetts has one of the largest, and the most costly legislatures in the nation. Vermont, Connecticut and New Hampshire legislators receive less than $600 per year.

"The abolition of the Governor's Council. Still in use in only two other states, the Council primarily duplicates functions previously handled, thoroughly, by other competent state authorities. The Council's existence is a waste of $100,000 annually.

"The overhaul of a patched, confusing and highly costly tax system.

"The integration of many county services into state government. Two-hundred payrolls, 235 purchasing agents, sparsely filled county TB hospital and penal institutions are a drain on taxes and a heavy waste.

"Every possible step must be taken to reduce the 1 1/4 billion dollar debt of the Commonwealth.

"Constitutional changes as suggested will result in economies up to 25 million dollars annually; a modernized state operation will be enabled to work efficiently toward further debt reduction."

Iowa Test Results Will Be Mailed

The Guidance Department of the Andover Junior High School has announced that the Iowa Basic Skill test results will be enclosed with the third term report cards of all seventh grade students.

The basic skills tested in the Iowa Tests are Vocabulary, Reading, Language, Work Study Skills and Arithmetic. The results show parents how well their child has mastered the basic skills generally. They also show how well a student compares with thousands of other pupils who have taken these tests.

Since most seventh grade students were tested last year, parents can also tell how much growth has taken place during the year in each of the skills.

Parents who have questions concerning interpretation of scores may phone either Miss Katherine Sweeney, dean of girls, or William E. Hart, guidance counselor.

Choir, Chorus Plan Concert

The Andover Male Choir and the Andover Choral Society are combining for a concert of secular and sacred music to be presented at the Andover High School May 17, at 8:15.

The program includes famous melodies from the top musical comedies, together with choruses from the great masters such as Bach, Mozart, Mendelssohn, and others.

The Male Choir, well known in New England for its prize winning accomplishments as a member of the New England Federation of Men's Glee Clubs, has lined up a program of popular male choruses. The Choral Society of 30 women's voices will be heard in light selections, as well as those of a more serious nature.

An added attraction is Cathy Goss, a 17-year-old soprano who is a member of the Beverly Choristers and who has been well received as a soloist on the North Shore. J. Everett Collins, director of the Choristers, has watched with great pride the rapid advance of this delightful voice and takes pleasure in presenting this talented young singer to an Andover audience.

The combined chorus of some 70 voices has been rehearsing diligently every Tuesday night to present a musical evening of the highest order. Ann DiLavore is the accompanist.
